CURRENT'S SOURCES

Current's sources of material include not only newspapers and periodicals in the U.S. and abroad, but also: academic journals and proceedings of learned societies; books, pamphlets and reports from commercial publishers, universities, foundations and funds, citizen organizations and special interest groups; television and radio commentators, interviews, forums; government and inter-government sources; statements of opinion leaders.

BUSY PEOPLE WHO MUST KEEP UP WITH THE NEW IDEAS TELL YOU HOW CURRENT HELPS

"As my life gets increasingly complicated and the time available for reading anything shrinks alarmingly, CURRENT becomes more and more indispensable to keep abreast of important items appearing in a wide variety of relevant sources."

Lincoln P. Bloomfield
Director, Arms Control Project
Center for International Studies
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

"CURRENT fills a great need for those of us with less time to read than we should have. Its pages are used often in public speeches; its selections do much to help mould thought."

Joseph T. Stukes
Vice President for Academic Affairs
Erskine College, South Carolina

"CURRENT is indispensable to a busy man who is interested in the very newest writing about society and its problems."

Paul G. Hoffman
Managing Director
United Nations Special Fund

"I have been a subscriber to CURRENT for some years now and have found it very useful. I keep the copies of the magazine, but I find it difficult to refer back to sources that I have read some time past. I hope you have an index, year by year . . ."

Orville Freeman
Secretary
Department of Agriculture

"CURRENT has more provocative and useful information and ideas per column inch than I have seen in a long while."

Gilbert A. Harrison
Editor-in-Chief
The New Republic
